

UN Universal Periodic Review of Ireland

Submission by the Irish Penal Reform Trust for the 39th Session of the UPR Working Group of the Human Rights Council

25th March 2021

Submitting Stakeholder: Irish Penal Reform Trust

Established in 1994, the Irish Penal Reform Trust (IPRT) is Ireland's leading civil society organisation campaigning for rights in the penal system and the progressive reform of Irish penal policy. Our vision is one of respect for human rights in the penal system, with imprisonment used only as a sanction of last resort. We work towards progressive reform of the penal system based on evidence-led policies and on a commitment to combating social injustice. IPRT publishes a wide range of policy positions and research documents; we campaign across a wide range of penal policy issues; we work constructively with all stakeholders; and we have established IPRT as the leading independent voice in public debate on the Irish penal system.

Introduction

1. This submission¹ has been drafted by the Irish Penal Reform Trust.² It follows up on recommendations from Ireland's second Universal Periodic Review in 2016³ (paras 9 to 34) and identifies other issues which have emerged since (see paras 35 to 45).
2. Since Ireland's last review under the UPR in 2016, there has been progress on the recommendations as they relate to Ireland's penal system. For example, there has been full implementation of the recommendation to end imprisonment of children in adult prisons, and significant progress on the recommendation to end 'slopping out' in prisons.
3. There has been partial or no implementation of recommendations in other areas, such as ratification of the OPCAT. There has been regress in areas including solitary confinement and prison overcrowding.
4. The treatment of mentally ill prisoners is one of the "most pressing issues within Irish prisons", according to the European Committee for the Prevention of Torture and Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (CPT).⁴ Ireland is currently "not meeting its obligations to ensure adequate healthcare provision for mentally ill prisoners" and this must be addressed "as a matter of extreme urgency", according to the Chief Inspector of Prisons. Restrictions imposed on some mentally ill prisoners "amount to inhuman and degrading treatment".⁵ (See paras 35-39 below.)

Impact of Covid-19 on Ireland's prison system

5. To date, there have been fewer than 100 confirmed cases of Covid-19 among prisoners and no reported deaths due to the virus among prisoners or prison staff.⁶
6. Ireland's Covid-19 response included a reduction in prison crowding by 10% and the introduction of technologies such as video visits and in-cell telephony. However, the impacts of restrictions have been harsh: significantly reduced out-of-cell time, with some prisoners reporting spending 30+ consecutive hours in their cells;⁷ vastly reduced access to exercise, education, and workshops; and the near total suspension of in-person family visits since March 2020.
7. In July 2020, the Prison Rules were amended to allow the prison service to suspend prisoners' minimum entitlements to (i) visits and (ii) recreation, exercise or training for reasons of infectious diseases.⁸ There is no sunset clause included in the amendments nor is the State obligated to mitigate the effects of these amendments on individuals' rights.
8. No prison inspection reports covering the pandemic period since March 2020 have been published, and there has been no human rights impact assessment of measures introduced.⁹ Therefore, the current situation of human rights in prisons in Ireland is not known.

Recommendation 1: A human rights impact assessment should be carried out by parliament with urgency, and on an ongoing basis, to evaluate whether measures taken in response to Covid-19 in prisons are proportionate and necessary.

Ratification of the OPCAT and establishment of a national preventive mechanism

Recs 135.8 – 135.25

9. Ireland has not ratified OPCAT or established a National Preventive Mechanism (NPM). Timelines for drafting the Inspection of Places of Detention Bill have not been met.¹⁰ In June 2020, the Government committed to ratifying OPCAT within 18 months of its formation.¹¹
10. Prisoners in Ireland do not have access to a fully independent complaints mechanism. The CPT has said the current prisoner complaints system “cannot be considered as fit for purpose”.¹² Concerns relate to: recording and investigation of complaints; timeliness of responses to complaints; and reported instances of prisoners being bullied by officers after making a complaint. Major issues with the prisoner complaints system identified by the Office of the Inspector of Prisons (OiP) include failure by the Irish Prison Service (IPS) to observe its legal obligations, and provision of “inaccurate data” to the Inspectorate.¹³ The timeline of 2019 for implementation of a new prisoner complaints system¹⁴ was not met. Proposals accepted by Government in 2016 to extend the remit of the Ombudsman to include prisoner complaints have not yet been implemented, 5 years on.¹⁵
11. There has been no inspection report of a closed prison in Ireland published since 2014, and there are long delays in the submission and publication of reports on investigations into deaths in prison custody.¹⁶ Resourcing of the OiP has been significantly increased in 2021. However, under Irish law, the Minister for Justice retains the power to publish and redact inspection reports.¹⁷ IPRT has called for legislative amendments to empower the OiP to publish its reports directly.¹⁸

Recommendation 2: Ratify OPCAT and create an effective and independent National Preventive Mechanism; implement a fully independent prisoner complaints mechanism, including access to the Ombudsman; and strengthen the powers of the Office of the Inspector of Prisons.

Human rights training for prisons guards

Rec 135.79

12. Prison officer CPD training includes a ‘Human Rights in the Custodial Environment’ module, which covers the UN Treaty Framework, the ECHR, and accessing rights within a custodial environment.¹⁹ Frequency of this training is not known.

Investigate all cases of abuse and ill-treatment by prison officials

Recs 135.79, 135.120

Implement recommendations arising from Office of the Inspector of Prisons review

Rec 136.50

13. Incidents of racial abuse by prison officers have been reported in media²⁰ and also directly to IPRT. The CPT found examples of a small number of officers using excessive physical force and/or verbally abusing prisoners, including racial abuse – most notably directed towards members of the Traveller community and persons of African descent.²¹
14. The OiP has consistently raised concerns about incomplete, misleading or inaccurate prison records,²² and failure to conduct 15-minute checks of prisoners under special observation.²³

Conditions of detention

Recs 135.121, 135.122, 135.123

15. Staff shortages and their impact on education closures are a regular feature of the Irish prison system.²⁴ External organisations coming into prisons have been turned away due to these shortages, and Prison Visiting Committees have described how the shortages *“have also resulted in the postponement of medical appointments or the cancellation of long awaited visits to children/family at special times, a particularly harrowing experience for those concerned.”*²⁵
16. Violence in prisons is a concern. In 2019, there were 452 prisoner-on-prisoner assaults and 123 prisoner-on-staff assaults recorded.²⁶ However, the CPT has noted its concerns about the integrity of the data, which means it is not possible to analyse the extent of violence.²⁷ A review of prisoner-on-staff assaults highlighted that most of these assaults relate to a small number of prisoners with challenging behaviours and/or mental health problems.²⁸
17. A high percentage (14%) of prisoners are held on restricted regimes, locked up for 19 or more hours per day²⁹ (this does not include medical isolation for Covid-19 reasons). Two-thirds of these, or 9% of the total prison population, are locked in their cells for more than 21 hours per day.³⁰ In January 2020, 75 people were in solitary confinement. Most 'protection' prisoners on restricted regimes have no access to education and workshops.³¹
18. There is no data available on the number of days individuals are held on restricted regimes, including solitary confinement. Limited figures obtained in 2016 showed that 24 prisoners had been held in their cell for 22+ hours for over 100 days, and at least nine prisoners had spent over a year in such conditions.³²

Recommendation 3: Record and publish data on the length of time persons are held on restricted regimes; set out in legislation the maximum number of days for which a person can be held in solitary confinement; and prohibit solitary confinement for children, young adults, women, and persons with disabilities.

Prison overcrowding

Recs 135.124, 135.123

19. Overcrowding has been reduced in response to the Covid-19 pandemic. However, this is a temporary situation that is likely to end when the Courts re-open. There was an 11% reduction in prison numbers from 4,235 on 11 March 2020 to 3,748 on 6 August 2020,³³ achieved mainly through the release of prisoners serving sentences of less than 12 months.
20. Ireland is over-reliant on prison as a response to social issues and less serious offending. 76% of sentenced committals to prison in 2019 were for sentences of less than 12 months. In 2019, more people served short sentences of <12 months than community service orders (3,453 compared with 2,791)³⁴. Up to 35% of sentenced female prisoners are serving short sentences of <12 months.
21. Prior to March 2020, the overcrowding situation in Irish prisons had deteriorated. The daily average number of people in custody in 2019 was 3,971,³⁵ an increase on 2017 and 2018. People throughout the prison estate were sleeping on mattresses in 2019³⁶ and early 2020, including 75 people on 2nd March 2020.³⁷

22. Contrary to international standards, single occupancy is not the norm. In January 2020, 53% of the prison population had access to single-cell accommodation, 36% were sharing a cell with one other person, 9% were sharing triple cells, and 2% were in quadruple cells (including dormitories in an open prison).³⁸
23. In Cloverhill remand prison, which has the largest unit holding mentally ill prisoners, the CPT observed that the unit was “overflowing with seven prisoners having to sleep on mattresses on the floor”.³⁹ The CPT was further concerned that most cells in Cloverhill are designated as triple occupancy, despite being only 11m² in size (including the semi-partitioned toilet).
24. The two women’s prisons are chronically overcrowded. Up to a third of female prisoners are serving short sentences and a quarter are on remand. There are plans to increase closed prison capacity for women, despite policy consensus that community-based responses are more effective⁴⁰ and the UN Bangkok Rules.⁴¹ There are no plans to establish an open prison for women. A step-down (post-release) unit for women was opened in June 2019.

Recommendation 4: Use measures introduced to successfully reduce the prison population during Covid-19 (e.g. access to temporary release and early release) to maintain low prison numbers and end overcrowding in Irish prisons. Embed in legislation the principle of “prison as a last resort” and a presumption against short sentences.

In-cell sanitation

Rec 135.121

25. There has been significant progress towards the elimination of ‘slopping out’ in prisons through provision of in-cell sanitation. However, the practice has not ceased. In October 2020, 47 prisoners were slopping out in Portlaoise prison and Limerick prison.⁴² Construction of new facilities at Limerick prison is underway⁴³ but timelines have not been met.
26. In October 2020, 45% (1,716) of prisoners were required to toilet in the presence of others.⁴⁴ The CPT has said all in-cell toilet facilities should be fully partitioned up to the ceiling to provide privacy and dignity for prisoners sharing a cell.⁴⁵
27. Women prisoners have reported difficulties accessing sanitary products.⁴⁶

Recommendation 5: Ensure all people in prison have access to toilets in private; refurbish cells to provide for fully partitioned toilets; and ensure decent access to gender-specific products.

Separation of remand (pre-trial) and sentenced prisoners

Rec 135.125

28. There has been a 21% increase in the average number of people held on remand in Irish prisons since 2017.⁴⁷ The proportion of female committals on remand has increased steadily and comprised 71% of all female committals in 2017.⁴⁸ In 2019, 27% of remand prisoners were sharing a cell with sentenced prisoners.⁴⁹
29. Homelessness is a factor behind the increasing number of people on remand in prison. In 2019, 7.8% of committals to prison declared they were of ‘no fixed abode’.⁵⁰ One Irish study found that 17.4% people were homeless on committal.⁵¹ Homelessness is a particular issue for men in Cloverhill prison, with as much as one third of prisoners affected.⁵²

30. Remand prisoners and immigration detainees are held in the same facilities.⁵³ For female prisoners, there is no separation of detainees awaiting trial, immigration detainees, and sentenced prisoners.

Recommendation 6: Use pre-trial detention as an exceptional measure; invest in access to bail supports; ensure remand prisoners held separately from sentenced prisoners; end the accommodation of immigration detainees in prison.

Detention of children

Recs 135.87, 135.121, 135.125

31. The practice of sending children to adult prisons in Ireland ended in 2017⁵⁴ and St Patrick's Institution has been closed. A Bail Supervision Scheme⁵⁵ was introduced in 2017 to reduce the number of children detained on remand.
32. In August 2020, there were 36 children in Oberstown Child Detention Campus.⁵⁶ Of these, 39% were on remand (pre-trial).⁵⁷ Children have reported that remand units have poorer conditions than other units and fewer opportunities to engage in activities. More generally, reports of insufficient access to school hours on Campus have been shared with IPRT.
33. In 2016, there were 3,027 single separation incidents recorded at Oberstown⁵⁸, which has a maximum capacity of 48 boys and 6 girls. In 2017, inspectors raised concerns about children spending prolonged periods of time in single separation.⁵⁹ An inspection report in 2019 noted a reduction in single separation incidents but still a significant use of restrictive procedures on the campus.⁶⁰
34. The children detained have disproportionate experience of adversities and trauma. In 2019, 41% of the children were either in State care or had significant involvement with child protection and welfare services prior to detention. Traveller children comprise 19% of children in Oberstown, 23% of children had a diagnosed learning disability, and 31% had experienced the loss of a parent.⁶¹

Detention of people with mental illness in prison

35. People with severe mental illness are detained in Irish prisons, sometimes for long periods.⁶² Vulnerable prisoners accommodated in Cloverhill prison are sleeping on floors.⁶³ Prison chaplains have described mentally-ill prisoners as being "doubly punished".⁶⁴
36. In May 2018, 323 people (out of a prison population of 4,000) on the caseload of the National Forensic Mental Health Service (NFMHS) team were deemed to be suffering from a severe mental illness; there were "another several hundred prisoners" not on the caseload.⁶⁵
37. There are consistently 20-30 prisoners on the waiting list for transfer to the Central Mental Hospital (CMH). The average waiting time for transfer from prison to the CMH in 2019 was 120.86 days. The shortest waiting time was seven days and the longest was 504 days.⁶⁶ Plans to increase capacity of the NFMHS facility to 130 secure beds⁶⁷ will not meet current or future demand. One mentally ill man was held in prison on remand for 14 months, with much of that time spent in isolation.⁶⁸

38. Following its 2019 visit to Ireland, the CPT requested a wholesale review of the use of Safety Observation Cells in prisons and recorded its concerns about: the routine removal of prisoner's clothing when they are placed in an observation cell; prisoners' lack of access to showers and outdoor exercise when placed in observation cells; and the recording of data on the use of such cells.⁶⁹ In 2017, the IPS committed to publishing the lengths of time prisoners were held in Safety Observation Cells; to date this information has not been made available.⁷⁰
39. In the High Support Unit in Mountjoy prison, the CPT found a "complete lack of structured activities" for prisoners, nearly all of whom had long-term and severe mental illness. No occupational therapy, individual or group psychotherapy or recreational therapy was available; only pharmacotherapy. The CPT recorded: "In sum, the prisoners wandered idly around the unit or the yard and watched television." The CPT also met one prisoner who was "completely neglected" and living in a dirty and squalid cell.⁷¹

Recommendation 7: Increase access to therapeutic psychiatric beds in community facilities and in the Central Mental Hospital so that prisoners with mental illness can be quickly diverted from the criminal justice system and receive the care needed.

Healthcare

40. The Department of Health does not currently govern prison healthcare in Ireland, and the national health inspectorate does not inspect prison healthcare.
41. Prison mental health and addictions services are under-resourced. In June 2019, there were 614 prisoners on a waiting list for psychology services.⁷² In March 2021, there were 1,200 prisoners (30%) on the waiting list.⁷³ Over 500 prisoners are on a waiting list for addiction services. The lack of addiction counselling services has been highlighted by Prison Visiting Committees.⁷⁴
42. Prison Visiting Committee reports document poor healthcare services across the prison estate, including delays and cancellations of medical appointments outside the prison.⁷⁵ Healthcare issues for older people in prison include living with dementia and other serious conditions, with some confined to their cell or bedbound.⁷⁶ Prisoners with disabilities also struggle, with some relying on other prisoners to support them with daily tasks.⁷⁷
43. A number of reports from the OiP⁷⁸ and CPT⁷⁹ have identified incidents where prison operational issues, such as custodial staff shortages, have taken precedence over the decisions of medical staff. In one case, this contributed to the death of a man.⁸⁰ In response, the OiP stated that the provision of healthcare to prisoners should be the sole responsibility of medical professionals and must not be dependent on operational considerations.⁸¹

Recommendation 8: Governance of prison healthcare should be transferred to the national health service.
